

Paul Boyle

Senior Vice President, Public Policy, News Media Alliance

Paul Boyle manages the government affairs operation of the association advocating on trade, tax policy, postal affairs, media and advertising regulations, and First Amendment / newsgathering issues. Under Boyle's leadership, the industry reversed tariffs imposed on imports of Canadian newsprint; preserved the current tax treatment of advertising expenses; resisted government efforts to reclassify independent contractors; reduced postal rates impacting newspapers; and reformed the Freedom of Information Act. He has testified before congressional committees and has been interviewed by hundreds of media outlets over the years.

Boyle is a member of the American Society of Association Executives. He is a graduate of the University of California, Santa Barbara. He and his wife, Joy, live in Washington, D.C.