Now Available: 2024 International Newspaper Carrier Day Ads

The News/Media Alliance has produced an International Newspaper Carrier Day ad for use during National Newspaper Week and on International Newspaper Carrier Day, this year on Saturday, October 12, 2024. We have also provided a version of the ad for postal workers who deliver the newspaper. We encourage members to run the ads in your publications to show your support and thank your hardworking newspaper carriers, without whom many people would not receive the news.

Publishers Feel Seen At The Google Ad Tech Antitrust Trial

The Google ad tech antitrust trial has been a font of revelations about how Google benefited from its end-to-end position in programmatic advertising – and how publishers were harmed. Publishers told AdExchanger they were encouraged to see the DOJ highlight Google's stranglehold on the ad server market, which they see as their biggest impediment to negotiating with Google... "At the end of the day, Google controls the ad server and the other major points in the pipeline. They control so much demand through AdX and AdWords that they have all the leverage," said Danielle Coffey, president and CEO of the News/Media Alliance.

Trust Tips: Explain why news outlets run political ads

Whether on air, in print or online, don't assume that your audience understands why you run political ads and whether you edit or fact-check them. Instead, take the time to explain how political advertising works by answering these questions.

Challenges, opportunities for local opinion journalism and philanthropy

We knew that opinion editors were keenly interested in an opinion section's connection to sustainability. And the interest went well-beyond subscriptions. It became clear experimentation with philanthropy and local opinion journalism was happening across the country, but those involved were not connected enough to begin learning from one another. Our Washington, D.C. event surfaced many ideas and questions featured in this report, including challenges of local media and stakeholders pursuing such projects.

A South Florida newspaper refused to publish a political candidate's 'myths and falsehoods'

The Sun Sentinel in South Florida recently refused to endorse a candidate for office, in part, because of that candidate's claims of fraudulent elections. Not only did the editorial board endorse the other candidate, it published a lengthy explanation, which included why it refused to even run a questionnaire sent in by the candidate, which it said was full of "myths and falsehoods."
